When mythical creatures commit a real crime, who gets to be the judge?

Acutely observed, wry and playful, her debut collection celebrates people who are torn between cultures and juggling a fragmented sense of self.

Five writers form a writing support group but the dynamics shift when a young, handsome Asian writer joins them; three Singaporean daughters welcome their mother on her first visit to London and quarrel over steamboat; a Chinese woman raps about being a Tiger Mother; an elderly Chinese woman recognizes that it isn't the race that estranges, but the inability to tell the truth; an ethnic writer takes on Eastern mythology in a metaphoric quest to understand the anxiety of Western literary influence. Filled with humourous and heartening short stories, this anthology is a time capsule of how identities evolve and change with the times and places.

Elaine Chiew is a writer and a visual arts researcher, and editor of Cooked Up: Food Fiction from Around the World (New Internationalist, 2015). Scream to the Shadows

TUNKU HALIM

Format: B format/Paperback

Extent: 240 pp

ISBN: 978-981-48-6715-3

Price: S$15.00

Pub Month: July 2019

A Malaysian with an undeniable gift for the narrative. —New Straits Times

Unconfined to a single theme, this new collection of twenty short stories by Halim offers five distinct worlds – the paranormal mysteries from ‘The occult world’, with its dark settings reveal supernatural existences in the characteristic Halim style. ‘Fragmented Minds’ open doors to the tales of the horrors of some twisted human minds driven by madness. Without the theme of supernatural, these instances of the human rationality falling apart evoke fear of a different nature. The third set of horrors is a reflection of our vulnerability, with its tales of how the technology can be destructive at times.

In five different sets, ‘Scream to the Shadows’ touches upon the different forms of terrors that bring fears of their distinct natures.

Tunku Halim is a Malaysian novelist, short story, non-fiction writer and lawyer. His novel Vermillion Eye was a study text at the National University of Singapore. By delving into Malay myth, legends and folklore, his writing is regarded as ‘World Gothic’. His novel, Last Breath, is seen as taking a step away from the genre into ‘a mixture of character drama, satire, alternate history, and magic realism’.

Below the Crying Mountain

CRISELDA YABES

Format: B format/Paperback

Extent: 176 pp

ISBN: 978-981-48-6716-0

Price: S$12.90

Pub Month: May 2019

A moving tale of courage and love, set against the Zamboanga crisis in the Southern Philippines in the 1970s.

In Below the Crying Mountain, the Moro Rebellion that broke out in the Sulu archipelago in the 1970s, and that continues to wound the nation, is seen vividly through the lives of the mestiza Rosy Wright, the Tausug girl Nahla, the rebel leader Prof. Hassan, the soldier Capt. Rodolfo as well as in the quest of the book's narrator. The personal is political as war fuels the clash of emotions, histories and cultures.

The story traces the lives of Jolo residents Rosy France Wright, a half-American girl who elopes with a Muslim professor from Christian Zamboanga to Muslim Jolo, leaving behind her husband-without-ceremony, Omar Hassan, her best friend, Nahla, a Tausug girl and Jolo local, Captain Rodolfo, who becomes Nahla's lover. The events take place against the backdrop of the escalation of communal and other tensions during the 70's and 80's. Through the eyes of the narrator the reader is able to follow the transformation of Jolo—from its former glory days of prestigious parties to the ushering in of a new era of more zealous religious observance.

Criselda Yabes has published eight books, including Sarena's Story: The Loss of a Kingdom, which also won the UP Centennial Literary Prize for Creative Non-Fiction simultaneously with Below the Crying Mountain. A journalism graduate of the University of the Philippines in Diliman, she worked as correspondent for the international press in Manila, covering politics and coups as well as other major events overseas.

A light-hearted story, Beauty Queens of Bishan centers around stereotypical rich Indian families in Singapore, yet it does not leave out other parts of the community and how they all come together in the beauty parlours of the average-class heartland of Bishan.

In Bishan, the busiest suburb of Singapore, thirteen small beauty parlours co-exist quietly, offering haircuts, bikini waxes and facials at no-nonsense prices. All that changes when a swanky new salon opens. D'Asthetique (Beauty is Skin Deep) is run by April Chua, the stylist to the stars. April's plan for Bishan includes controlling her competitors through a new society, NAILSO (Neighbourhood Alliance of Independent Lifestyle Service Operators). The only person who dares to protest is the chubby Gurpreet Kaur, owner of Monty Beauty Spa.

Both have clients in the upcoming Grand Glam Singapore Beauty contest. Will April's shoe-in Candy Kang prove yet again why she is Singapore's sweetheart? Or will Gurpreet's client, Tara Chopra, prove a star on stage as well as in court?

Quietly devastating, subtly subversive, and wonderfully wry.

Quixotic nonconformists in small towns and young newly-weds trying to keep up with the times; a forlorn retiree helpless in the face of contemporary anger, and a middle-class woman's bond with her maid. Fourteen well-crafted stories give us a sense of the daily life of a wide cast of characters. Hasan's protagonists are, as always, inward-looking, and whimsical and vulnerable outliers. Where is their place in the new order, where have they come from and where are they going?

Anjum Hasan is the author of three novels—The Cosmopolitans (shortlisted for the Crossword Book Award), Neti Neti (shortlisted for the Hindu Best Fiction Award) and Lunatic in My Head (shortlisted for the Crossword Book Award)—as well as a book of short stories, Difficult Pleasures (shortlisted for the Crossword Book Award and the Hindu Best Fiction Award), and a book of poems. SANGHVI

Format: Special/Paperback

Extent: 48 pp

ISBN: 978-981-48-6723-8

Price: S$9.90

A heartbreaking modern fable from a writer acutely alert to the dark surprises of the human heart.

The Squirrel's greatest joy is dancing in the forest with the Rabbit—her beloved friend and equal of heart. While the duo is inseparable, fate has other ideas: the feisty Squirrel is forcibly married to a wealthy boar and the solitary Rabbit enlists in a monastery.

Years later, a brief, tragic reunion finds them both transformed by personal defeats. And yet, to each other, they are unchanged, and their private world—where sorrow registered as rapture and wit concealed loss—is just how they had left it.

A story of thwarted love, and an ode to the enduring pleasures of friendship, The Rabbit and the Squirrel is a charmed fable for grown-ups, in which one life, against all odds, is fated for the other.

Siddharth Dhanvant Shanghvi's debut novel, The Last Song of Dusk, has been translated into sixteen languages, has won the UK's Betty Trask Award and Italy's Premio Grinzane Cavour, and was nominated for the International IMPAC Dublin Literary Award.

Pub Month: October 2019

An accessible insight into the co-relation between government policies and economic inequality.

Inequality has drastically increased in many countries around the globe over the past three decades. The widening gap between the very rich and everyone else is often portrayed as an unexpected outcome or as the trade-off we must accept to achieve economic growth. In this book, three International Monetary Fund economists show that this increase in inequality has, in fact, been a political choice—and explain what policies we should choose instead to achieve a more inclusive economy.

Jonathan D. Ostry is Deputy Director of the research department at the International Monetary Fund. His work on inequality and unsustainable growth has been cited by, among others, Barack Obama.

Prakash Loungani is Assistant Director in the IMF's Independent Evaluation Office.

Andrew Berg is the Deputy Director of the IMF's Institute for Capacity Development. He previously served at the U.S. Treasury, including as deputy assistant secretary for East Asia and Latin America in 2000–2001 and Chief Economist of the Mexican Task Force in 1995–1996.

Price: S$20.00

Pub Month: July 2019

Why companies need to move away from a product-first orientation to pursuing innovation based on customer needs.

In the past, companies found success with a product-first orientation; they made a thing that did a thing. Today, rather than asking, 'how do the products we make meet customer needs?', companies should ask, 'how can technology help us reimagine and fill a need?'

The introduction of 'smart' objects connected by the Internet of Things signals fundamental changes for business. The IoT, where real and digital coexist, is powering new ways to meet human needs. The Inversion Factor offers a blueprint for businesses making the transition to inversion and interviews with leaders of major companies and game-changing startups.

Linda Bernardi is a serial technology author, investor, and entrepreneur. Formerly the Chief Innovation Officer for IoT and Cloud at IBM, she runs the technology strategy firm Straterra Partners.

Sanjay Sarma is the Vice President for Open Learning and Fred Fort Flowers (1941) and Daniel Fort Flowers (1941) Professor of Mechanical Engineering at MIT.

The late Kenneth Traub, a consultant with thirty years of experience in software engineering, was the co-founder and technical advisor to five high technology startups.

How the smartphone can become a personal concierge (not a stalker) in the mobile marketing revolution of smarter companies, value-seeking consumers, and curated offers.

Consumers create a data trail by tapping their phones; businesses can tap into this trail to harness the power of the more than three trillion dollar mobile economy. According to Anindya Ghose, a global authority on the mobile economy, this two-way exchange can benefit both customers and businesses. In Tap, Ghose welcomes us to the mobile economy of smartphones, smarter companies, and value-seeking consumers.

Drawing on his extensive research in the United States, Europe, and Asia, and on a variety of real-world examples from companies including Alibaba, China Mobile, Coke, Facebook, SK Telecom, Telefonica, and Travelocity, Ghose describes some intriguingly contradictory consumer behavior: people seek spontaneity, but they are predictable; they find advertising annoying, but they fear missing out; they value their privacy, but they increasingly use personal data as currency. When mobile advertising is done well, Ghose argues, the smartphone plays the role of a personal concierge—a butler, not a stalker.

Anindya Ghose is the Heinz Riehl Chair Professor of Business at New York University's Leonard N. Stern School of Business, where he holds a joint appointment in the Information, Operations and Management Science, and Marketing Departments. In 2017, Thinkers50 identified him among the 30 management thinkers most likely to shape the future of how organizations are managed and led. His opinion pieces and research have been featured on the BBC, CNBC, MSNBC, NPR, NBC, and in The Economist, the New York Times, WIRED, Time, the Financial Times, and the Wall Street Journal.

The inside story – plans, strategies, casualties, letters – of the crackdown on terrorist groups by the Philippines military with the support of elite US Special forces, with no details spared.

The War on Terror is a book about terrorism — the al-Qaeda, Jemaah Islamiyah and the Abu Sayyaf Group and their operations in southern Philippines — and includes photographs of letters written by terrorist commanders and by kidnapped American couple Martin and Gracia Burnham. The book follows the growth, movement and activities of the ASG, the Jemaah Islamiyah and the al-Qaeda and talks about how the military broke the triad of their operations through various operational plans and strategies that were implemented with the support of US Special Forces, whose actual involvement in counter-terrorism operations in the Philippines is being detailed for the first time.

More than just about the issue of terrorism, the book will inform readers on the factors – social, political and economic that abet terrorism in a struggling country such as the Philippines.

People in different countries speak different languages-and sometimes these languages have words that are untranslatable into English. Did you know that Japanese has a word for pretending not to be at home when someone rings the doorbell? Or that there's a German word for the weight that you put on because of emotional eating? Or even that there's a Yiddish word for thinking of a witty comeback only when it's too late?

Archie's Cloud tells the story of Archie, a belligerent little boy on a brave and sometimes painful quest to a more peaceful life and stronger relationships.

'Archie's Cloud is a wonderful resource to help children navigate the challenges of regulating their emotions. Children relate to Archie and learn coping strategies from his magical adventure. The "Time to Talk and Share" section allows for guided personal reflection and subsequent positive change, empowering children to be the very best versions of themselves.' - Claire Holmes, Head of Counselling at Tanglin Trust School, Singapore

Archie's Cloud has been created as a resource for parents, teachers and therapists caring for children who experience rage and frustration. All children, in other words! But the child who is expected to benefit the most is the one who struggles at a deep level with the complex social landscapes of school and home. Told with humour and a light touch, this book looks directly and unapologetically at the frustration, anger and isolation so often felt by these children. Most importantly, it offers alternative behavioural strategies, equipping kids with tools to make healthier choices, with the promise of a more rewarding, less turbulent life for both them and those around them.
